There are 18 states in the U. S. having larger populations than Alabama but only 14 that spend more money for education in 1961, according to the figures released by the U. S. Census Bureau.

Alabama cannot possibly be at the bottom of the list of states in per pupil expenditure for education as we have so often in recent years been told.

Since Alabama is 16th in population and 18th in amount of money spent for education, it shows that we are above the average and close to the top instead of at the bottom as we have been told. While Alabama's per capita income is only fourth from bottom, the total amount of money we spend for education is 35th from bottom. Mississippi, Arkansas and South Carolina are the only three states that have a lower per capita income and this means that Alabama taxpayers are being taxed deeper in their pockets for the sake of education than most others in the nation.

When per capita income is considered, few states in the nation are doing well by education as Alabama. Few are spending so high a percentage of their per capita income for education. With our per capita income so near the bottom and yet our total expenditures for education so near the top, the fault is somewhere else if our schools are not what they ought to be as compared to other states; not because we are spending too little on them.

When we consider the nation as a whole, we see that Alabama is still doing well, seventy-seven dollars is spent for education in the United States today for each dollar spent in 1900. In 1960 there was a little more than three times as many pupils in school which would cut the per pupil spending to 25 times as much as it was in 1900. Then when we consider the cost of living today, which is about three times as much as it was in 1900, we see that we are spending about 8 times 1900 parity for education today.

The total spent in the U. S. for education in 1960 was less than a quarter billion dollars. In 1960, the schools of the nation received more

It Was a Wallace Victory . . .

Of course we're glad that we can say the man we supported for governor was the winner in Tuesday's run-off election. Other than our man for governor winning the election we lost a few and won a few. We supported Frank W. Boykin of Mobile and the First Congressional District to Congress and he was defeated and is now given the title "Mr. 9". Though Boykin is a wealthy man and does not need the job he deserved our support for his fight in Congress for the welfare of the South.

Supporters in Elba and Coffee County for both the candidates for governor worked hard in interest of the man they considered as the most valuable for Alabama's welfare. All were sincere in their support. Sam Sawyer worked hard throughout both elections for Wallace's election. Very noticeable and certainly of benefit for deGraffenried was the work of Robert Hamm. If deGraffenried had been elected and he responded by giving Robert Hamm the best paying job in the state he would still be short of paying him enough for his work in his interest. Robert Hamm was not a "Johnny Come Lately" in deGraffenried's interest. He was a deGraffenried supporter from the very beginning and a man we would like to have "on our side" in a political campaign.

Now that the election is history let us all work together in the interest of Alabama and of our own county and city. Regardless of the differences we might have encountered before the election let us now forget about it and work together for the interest of our own area as we did before the election demanded so much attention.

Such an election as we have just experienced is a wonderful thing to behold. It was a good example of real democracy at work. Freedom of speech and freedom of the right to vote for whomsoever we chose.

Be the cotton center of the world. It was a beautiful city near the southwestern corner of Arizona and is on the banks of the Colorado river in the center of a rich irrigated area. We crossed over the Colorado and entered California. The Colorado forms the boundary between Arizona and Mexico for 17 miles. The region traversed by the Colorado and its tributaries is for many reasons of intense interest to the people of the United States. There was the home of the forgotten people of which there is almost no record except the picture written on the rocks, the ruins of their irrigation systems and the cliff dwellings by which they are most widely known. In this region are Spanish missions whose history extends back nearly to the days of Babes and Caves. There is the Grand Canyon of the Colorado river, whose grandeur cannot be described and there are the great known natural bridges so remote and inaccessible that they have only in recent years been discovered. More than one thousand miles above the Colorado is a deep narrow gorge or canyon. The Colorado's tributaries have all cut out for themselves a narrow, deep or deep canyon, each river entering these has cut another canyon, each creek in turn has cut a canyon and each brook runs in a canyon so that much of the Colorado, especially the upper part of the basin, runs in deep gorges. The longest canyon through which the Colorado runs is that known as the Grand Canyon which is 278 miles long and at one place is 13 miles wide and nearly 6,000 feet deep. The Colorado river is one of the remarkable rivers of the world in its value for irrigation and water power. It is understood that the water we used while in California was carried there from the Colorado.

We entered California and immediately saw one of the most beautiful sights I have ever seen. We spent several days visiting with friends in the Imperial Valley where the Imperial Valley water continues on further west in California.

Coop's Expansion

Program To

Resume Hearings

Public hearings on Alabama Electric Cooperative's $20,350,000 expansion program are scheduled to resume before State Finance Director Maurice Patterson at 10:00 a.m. on Monday morning, June 1.

Hearings proceedings will again be conducted from the House of Representatives Chamber of the State Capitol Building in Montgomery.

Included in the planed expansion of Alabama Electric Cooperative's facilities is the construction of a new 312 million watt power plant near Jackson, Ala., (referred to as 700 miles of high voltage transmission lines).

The Rural Electrification Administration (REA) approved a loan of $20,350,000 for Alabama Electric Cooperative last November. Under Alabama law, the State Department of Finance must consent to the issuance of notes before the REA loan funds can be expended.

FFA Members

To Get Awards

At Convention

Plans for the 33rd Annual FFA Convention to be held at Auburn University June 6-8 were announced Tuesday by T. L. Faulkner, state supervisor of agricultural education. More than 9,000 Future Farmers from the state's 259 FFA chapters are expected to participate in the three-day convention. Highlights of the convention will be the naming of the most outstanding Future Farmer in Alabama. This award is one of many to be handed out at the convention.

Eleven state-wide FFA contests will be revealed. In addition, eight contests will have winners picked in direct competition at the convention. Awards in these contests are valued at approximately $1,000. This includes prize money and expense paid to national and regional contests for the winners.

Honorary FFA degrees will be conferred on 37 teachers, business and professional men Thursday night following Master's degree or Phi Kappa Psi degree.

Retired teachers will be honored with a special award. They will be doing lots of loafing when they retire. They'll be traveling over this country when they retire. They'll be welcome back to see us when they retire.

Mr. John Waylon Sharpless, president of the local AEA Unit, presented a gift and a diploma and certificate of recognition and appreciation for long and faithful service to the instructional program of Elba City School to each retiring teacher.

Elmer Taylor, acting principal, read a telegram expressing good wishes from Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Casey. It will be remembered that Mr. Taylor served as superintendent of Elba City Schools from 1949, when he resigned to enter private business in Dothan. Mr. Taylor also read a letter from Mrs. R. J. Bumpus of Gadsden, in which Mrs. Bumpus assured the retiring teachers that "The best is yet to be."

Following the program the teachers and guests were invited to a school cafeteria where a refreshment table held a lovely bouquet of mixed flowers, a crystal punch service, and trays of hearty homemade cookies.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kendrick of Selma, and a Mr. Jack Dickert and Jill Dickert of Brundidge.

Mrs. Adeline Prescott, Mrs. Jean Paul, Mrs. S. H. Taylor composed a faculty committee, who had charge of planning and preparing this excellent program.

The three honorees were orchid corsages, gifts from the senior class and Beta Club.
